Contemporary Education and the Destruction of the Christian Man

March 15, 2011
Reading Location

Formal education is the battlefield for the minds and souls of the next generation (and beyond!) Robert E. Salzman is the founder and past president of North-east Educational Associates, an educational consulting firm for both private schools and home schooling families. Active in the International Christian and home school movements for over thirty years he is the current president of the National Association of Private Schools and brings a lifetime of educational experience to our lecture.

- What is the Biblical role of the state in education?
- What is the Biblical role of the parent in education?
- How can my child benefit from public education?
- What are the key educational trends today, and how do they affect Christians?

Our Goal:

The goal of MARS is Exhortation by Education—helping individuals break unbiblical thinking patterns. Our presentations are intended to show that a biblical view on various matters may be outside the comfortable status quo. It's our duty as Christians to conform ourselves to God's pattern of thinking, to reform our thinking to His. Since the Bible is His revelation to us of how He thinks, His Word is where we must first inquire to know His will in all matters of life.

God has demonstrated in history and revealed in His Bible His blueprint for how life works. His message is fully confirmed by the power and authority of Christ's resurrection from the dead. We encourage all Christians to incorporate His principles and reform their day-to-day living with God's message.
